

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF CONNECTICUT

Wireless Internet Access Registration

The United States District Court for the District of Connecticut will provide wireless Internet access in the Richard C. Lee United States Courthouse in New Haven, and in those parts of the Abraham Ribicoff Federal Building in Hartford and the Brien McMahon Federal Building in Bridgeport occupied by the District Court. Access will only be provided to members of the bar of this Court, attorneys appearing pro hac vice and their legal staff subject to the terms of the Wireless Internet Access Plan.

The Court does not warrant that this service will be uninterrupted, error-free, or free of viruses or other harmful components. No information you consider confidential should be transmitted via this network, as public wireless networks are typically not secure. By using this network, you agree to be solely responsible for the content of all information you disseminate. The Court does not guarantee the accuracy, integrity or quality of third party communications.

Users should be aware that there are security, privacy and confidentiality risks inherent in wireless communications and associated technology and the Court does not make any assurances or warranties relating to such risks. By using the wireless Internet access, users agree that the United States District Court is not liable for any costs or damages, special, incidental or consequential, arising from the use of this service. The United States District Court does not control any materials, information, products or services on the Internet.

No technical support of any kind will be provided to any user trying to access the wireless network except to verify the current operational state of the wireless Internet connection. Internet access at designated areas is provided only as a courtesy and may not be available at any requested time.

By using this service provided by the Court, you are agreeing to the disclaimer set forth above.
